

1. Create and manipulate computer files through the use of word processors, spreadsheets, databases, presentation, and graphic design software.
2. Utilize fundamental financial management tools secure or grant agricultural loans.
3. Relate agricultural economics to healthy and profitable business decisions.
4. Consider financial risk management practices from individual and institutional perspectives.
5. Explore government programs, resources, and regulatory policies in place to support and guide agricultural producers.
6. Utilize commodity marketing strategies to maximize business profitability.